

About this Area

H.J. Waters and C.B. Moss Memorial Wildlife Area (102 acres) is in Columbia about 1/2-mile west of Highway 63 on Stadium Boulevard and 1/4-mile south on Old 63.

Natural features include 75-foot limestone bluffs along Grindstone Creek, which flows 1/4 mile through the area. Firearms hunting is prohibited.

In 1853, Daniel Doresy Moss acquired this property which became known as "Hill Crest Farm". Mr. Moss was an associate professor of chemistry at the University of Missouri and he began the business of producing smallpox vaccine at this location. This business continued for several years until competition in the vaccine business made it more profitable to raise cows on the farm. Dairying became the chief income operation of Hill Crest Farm, and this business, under several ownerships but using the same name, "Hillcrest Dairy", was the primary use of the property. Both Mr. C.B. Moss and Mr. H.J. Waters donated their respective parts of the Hillcrest farm to the Department in 1972.
